A Mountain Spring

Henry Kendall

Peace hath an altar there. The sounding feet
 Of thunder and the wildering wing of rain
 Against fire-rifted summits flash and beat,
 And through grey upper gorges swoop and strain;
 But round that hallowed mountain-spring remain,
 Year after year, the days of tender heat,
 And gracious nights whose lips with flowers are sweet,
 And filtered lights, and lutes of soft refrain.
 A still, bright pool. To men I may not tell
 The secrets that its heart of water knows,
 The story of a loved and lost repose;
 Yet this I say to cliff and close-leaved dell:
 A fitful spirit haunts your limpid well,
 Whose likeness is the faithless face of Pse.
