Planning For My Future

I am currently an S6 student, which is an important stage in my life. I need to decide, or remind myself, of my aims in life. How is my life going? I believe that I should plan well for a successful future and set myself clear aims. With that in mind, I will plan carefully for my education, career, health and family.

To begin with education, I need to prepare well for my DSE examination. The cut-throat competition for university entrance has turned the HKDSE examination into a make-or-break test. I need to work hard and boost my academic results and that is the main target for me now. I have to get good results and get into university. Of course, I am not sure that I can get 100% excellent results; and, should I fail to get into university, I will keep studying because knowledge is power in our society, and I will try to study part-time to get into university later.

Therefore, I will work hard to grasp more and more knowledge; and strive always to be the best I can be in life.

Let us move on now to talk about my future job. I want to be a reporter, and not just to get to interview celebrities! In fact, the most interesting part of being a reporter is to reveal the truth in news stories in our society. Becoming a reporter may not mean that I will earn a huge salary, but it can let me tell the truth to the public. To be a reporter, I need to be brave and also to have high morals and a sense of justice. I hope I can become a reporter.

Health is another important issue for my future. The world is full of strange and colourful matters so I need to have good health to experience different things, like sports. I need to keep my body in good health and regular exercise is indispensable. I would like to try football and basketball because they are exciting team games. In addition to eating more vegetables and fruits, more vitamins and nutrition are needed to keep myself strong enough to live.

Finally, the most important people in my life are my family members. I will take care of them and use most of my time to help and support them always. I will focus not only on my job, but on taking care of my family members, too. Life is short, and I do not want to feel regret at not maintaining a close relationship with my parents. If I get a stable job, I would like to travel around the world with my family.

These are my future plans. I hope that I really can become a successful person one day.
