

Good morning Dr Wong, teachers and students.

I am Andy Cheng from 5 B. This morning I would like to talk about the benefits of participating in some inter-school competitions or activities. In the last two years, our school has been sending hundreds of students to take part in competitions and activities organized for all schools in Hong Kong. Some students may think that we will not win against students from other famous schools. In fact, they are quite wrong. Our students have won prizes in many events, such as in speech contests, choir singing, picture drawing, athletic events, social services and many others.

If you take part in these activities, firstly, you learn more because teachers will give you additional training.

Secondly, you make more new friends and you can share the laughter and tears with them.

Thirdly, you meet some really good contestants in the competitions. You can broaden your horizon and you can learn from them.

Fourthly, if you win a prize, it does not only bring you a sense of achievement, it also adds something valuable to your personal records. It helps in your further studies and future career.

So, in summary do try to take part in activities organized by schools in the future.

Thank you.
