

Good morning principal, teachers and fellow schoolmates:

Today I would like to talk about care. With so many people suffering from stress these days, it's easy to overlook how to care for people around us. In fact, it is not difficult to be aware of our shortcomings of neglecting others.

Whenever you see friends and family members, smile to them and show your concern. Showing concern for people will give you the same return.

After all, love is all we have to give.

This is the end of my sharing. Thank you.