

Typhoon Koppu

On Monday, Typhoon Koppu swept past Hong Kong overnight. The No. 8 storm signal was in effect for more than 16 hours, so we had an extra holiday on Tuesday.

Most of you felt happy for having an extra holiday, but there were people who suffered a great deal because of this typhoon, for instance, Tai O's residents who faced flooding under Koppu's attack. The residents had to move everything to a higher place in order to reduce their damage to the houses. Most of them needed to stay overnight to look after their belongings.

To conclude, I think we are very lucky because we have a more comfortable life than those victims. All of us should treasure what we have at this very moment and try our best to help the needy, such as the handicapped and orphans in the disasters. Thank you.
