

Our Environment

Good Morning Principal, Vice-Principals, Teachers and Fellow schoolmates.

Speaking of environment, we usually hear about how global warming is affecting us or how environmental degradation is hitting our economy, or the end of the world will come if we don't improve our interaction with our natural surroundings.

That's where the worries come from. I guess in a way we are all worrying about the environment. Let us not forget something though, worrying too much or too little both get you into trouble. Fearing too little makes the environment become worse, and being too fearful of the future environment kills your motivation to move forward. Suitable worrying can help us to find the methods for solving the problems which have already existed.

In other words it's "being concerned and involved", by that you can transform worry into action, become green and make the world a better place to live in.
