

Nobel Prize

Good morning Principal, Vice-Principals, teachers and my fellow schoolmates.

Today, I would like to share my view about the Nobel Prize of Peace this year. Barack Obama, the President of the United States, was the winner of this year. The judges claimed that Obama has moulded our world to be a planet of peace, which includes no nuclear weapons. Moreover, he led Americans to deal with problems stirred up by global warming. When the news was announced, criticizing voices raised that Obama did not deserve such an honour.

Compared with Charles Kao, the Nobel Prize laureate of Physics, Obama's contribution to society is obviously not sufficient enough to deserve the prize. Mr. Kao has spent 45 years in his investigation so as to improve our living quality, why then could Obama gain the same honour for only a 9-month attempt?

Some said that the prize aims to encourage Obama to put more effort on international cooperation. However, from my point of view, Obama should try his best to improve international relationships before he can get recognition.

That's the end of my sharing. Thank You.
