

Aesop Fables

W: Wu Bailin
K: Kong Hin Chun
B: Both

W: Good morning, Kong!

K: Good morning, Wu!

W: What are you reading?

K: I've just finished a story from Aesop's Fables.

W: Yes, it's my favorite book too. What's the story you've just finished?

K: The tale is called A Shepherd Boy and the Wolf. A local shepherd boy always tricks villagers by shouting out that wolves are attacking his sheep. Later, when a wolf really does come and the boy again calls for help, the villagers believe that it is false alarm and this time wolf eats the sheep. This story teaches us that even if liars tell the truth eventually, no one believes them.

W: I've heard this tale since primary school.

K: Good! How about your favorite tale?

W: The hare and the tortoise. The hare asks the tortoise to have a race with him. Thinking that he must surely beat the tortoise, the hare sleeps in the middle of the race. When the hare awakes, the tortoise is nearing the finishing line. The hare tries his best to catch up but the tortoise wins the race finally. The tale teaches people never to be overconfident.

K: Yes, I agree! All the tales in Aesop's Fables are very educational.

W: Sure, they always teach us a lesson. We should live up to the morals of the fables in our daily lives.

Both: This is the end of our presentation, thank you!
