My Ideal Family

My ideal family is full of love, respect and support. My family shares lots of love, and family members bond spending time together eating meals, playing at weekends. We feel happy and have fun when we are they are together. Family members will also chat about the unhappy things that might have happened in their daily lives and we give support to each other by sharing opinions, money and experiences.

To form my ideal family, family members should respect and forgive each other when they make mistakes. When one of the family members makes a mistake, the rest of them ought to forgive and teach him that, no matter what he has done, the mistake was made, the wrongdoer should apologize and ask for forgiveness.

In my ideal family, family members should spend time together and help each other. They should respect and forgive each other, too. So my ideal family is full of love and no one should feel lonely or helpless.
